

Crisis Management and Emergency Preparedness

National Sugar Marketing LLC (“NSM”) and its Partners: D&S Ingredient Transfer Company, Inc. (“D&S”), National Sugar Logistics LLC (“NSL”), Southern Minnesota Beet Sugar Cooperative (“SMBSC”), Spreckels Sugar Company, Sucden Americas Corporation, and The Amalgamated Sugar Company LLC have jointly implemented crisis management and emergency preparedness programs. These programs evaluate potential crises that can impact our ability to deliver safe and wholesome products and outline measures to prevent or cope with their occurrence. During times of crisis, our Partners take all necessary measures to protect our employees, our products, and the environment.

The crisis management programs are locally overseen and include various activities such as the nomination of a local crisis management team, crisis management training, controls for handling identified crises, notification procedures, and inspection procedures to ensure that facilities maintain product integrity. Facilities locally review, test, and update these programs to ensure efficacy. Also, third-party auditors also review and verify these programs as part of our third-party audit certification.

NSM additionally implements measures to ensure facility disruptions do not affect our ability to source sugar, mitigating any disruption to the supply chain. To achieve this, NSM maintains a thorough supply chain program to evaluate and approve potential suppliers. Supply documentation is maintained and available to assist our customers with their unique approval processes. NSM promotes active communication with our customers to facilitate quick and accurate crisis notification.

Mike Fowers
Vice President of Quality
National Sugar Marketing, LLC
Reviewed/Revised: May 6, 2019